Monthly Commentary

The start of the month brought about a short-lived pull-back in shares, bonds and the US dollar, after central banks in the Eurozone, the UK and Canada signaled their readiness to begin winding down monetary stimulus measures. However, a flurry of solid manufacturing readings from the Eurozone, Japan and China and relatively good earnings results soon bolstered confidence in the health of the global economy. In Europe, the ECB left interest rates unchanged, but indicated that it may discuss scaling down its bond-buying scheme this autumn. The Bank of Japan kept its bond-buying program steady, but once again pushed back the date when it expects to reach its 2% inflation target to March 2020. China continued to confound expectations of a slowdown.

Similarly, the US Federal Reserve left its interest rates unchanged, while signaling that it is ready to start unwinding its crisis-era US$4 trillion balance sheet as soon as September. At the same time, it acknowledged that the persistently subdued inflation could raise questions about the timing of the next increase. This helped to spark a rally in US Treasuries and equities, while the US dollar retreated to a 14-month low against a basket of currencies, providing a boost to commodity prices and oil. This also helped the JSE to re-rate sharply up, with resources and industrial stocks leading the way.

In South Africa, political news continued to dominate as the ANC policy conference did little to inspire confidence, particularly when it touched on the nationalisation of the Reserve Bank. On the economic front, despite most short-term indicators, including manufacturing activity, pointing to a shrinking economy, the rand remained range-bound, helping inflation to moderate at 5.1% year-on-year in June. The rand's resilience has been underpinned by the generally positive sentiment towards emerging markets. The Reserve Bank cut interest rates by 0.25% to 6.75% per annum, although it warned that domestic growth prospects have deteriorated. It cut its growth forecast for 2017 from 1.0% to 0.5%. The IMF warned that South Africa's economy is extremely vulnerable to external shocks and funding shortfalls.

The FTSE/JSE Capped SWIX Index returned 5.3%, with Resources, Industrials and Financials delivering 13.7%, 6.2% and 5.6%, respectively. The JSE All Bond Index rose by 1.5%, while the rand weakened by 0.9% relative to the US dollar.
